Commander's Update By CMDR Carol Dyl

Commander
Carol A. Dyl

Hello everyone! I hope all is going well for you all as we approach the holiday season?

Let me be the first to announce the birth and newest crewmember aboard the USS Bellerophon. Congratulations to Christine and William Young on the birth of their newest addition to their family, Jacob Young. Born 10 November. He was born two months premature. Mother and son are doing just great.

Here on the bridge we have been busy once again. The USS Bellerophon has a crew of 17 and they have a family of 4 who are considering joining us. The USS Bellerophon has held two meetings now and continue to organize and work on our handbook.

New Members

I want to take this moment to recognize some new additions to our crew. Please welcome Megan Mosses, Katie Mosses, Amanda Mosses, and McKenzie Mosses.

R1 Annual Awards Update

About two weeks ago the R1 Awards Director announced a change in the R1 Annual Awards which basically stated that if an Individual or Chapter wins two consecutive times for the same award, then that Individual or Chapter would have to wait two years before they can compete in that same category. So as an example since the USS Helen Pawlowski won the R1 By-Monthly Newsletter of the year for the last two consecutive times (2012 and 2013) then they can not compete in that category until 2016. Now I have no problem with that. But a chapter did complain and felt it was not fair. I too had called for a vote by all chapters and let them be the deciding factor. I am happy to announce that the vote is over and with a 2-1 vote, the two year wait is now official.

R1 Co-Treasurer Announced

Congratulations to RADM Barry Jackson, CO of the Station Robert De Bruce on his appointment! We wish him all the best.

Chapter Web Site Completed!

Yes, we have our own web site. I want to thank Mike Timko and Paul Dyl for all their help in both working on the site and teaching me how to use the program so that I could update the site. When you get the chance, please check it out and tell me what you think of it. The URL is below:

Chapter Handbook

The Handbook is coming along at a slower pace than I had thought. We did send everyone by email the promotion regulation and are awaiting any feedback before 15 October. I hope to pick up the pace in the coming weeks.

CQ News!

STARFLEET, Chief Communications announced that issue #179 is now available online to download. You will need to log into the SFI database and go to the Communications link on the left to download it or other back issues.

Department Head Vacancies

We still have some key ship positions vacant. The current vacancies are: Chief Operations, Chief Diplomatic Corps and Chief Communications. For more information please read the vacancy announcement later in the newsletter.

Well my time is up, so I hope to have more for you in two months.

First Officer's Report Update By LCDR Ashley Walker

get together at the CO's house at about 6:00 pm. All the members with children are invited to participate in the children's costume contests and then a walk through the neighborhood for some trick or treating.

Thanksgiving Day Meal

Each year members who are close to one another get together and share a Thanksgiving Day meal. Our meal this year will be held in Whiteville, NC as the CO; Carol Dyl has volunteered to host the event. We will also be sharing the meal with friends from the other local chapters. If you plan to attend please let us know before the 15th of November.

Christmas Party

The chapter Christmas party will be held on December 20 starting at 7 pm. This will be at the Mogilka's in Loris, SC.

Here are a few rules for the event. A gift exchange will take place. Each person needs to bring one gift each. The gift will be placed under the tree. Each person will draw a number from 1 to how ever many show up. The number 1 will pick any gift from under the tree and open it. The next person will do the same, however, the second person has a choice to keep that gift or exchange from the number one person. This continues all the way to the end. Now the number one person now has the final choice of keeping their gift or exchanging it with another from the room.

The only other rule is that due to the economy and all, please keep the gifts down to $20.00. This is all about having fun!

New Years Eve

Our final main event is the New Years eve get together. This will be on December 31st and will start at 1 pm with a Star Trek movie jam sessions. We will start with the first movie which is Star Trek the Motion Picture and work our way in order of the film.

129th Marine Strike Group OIC Report 1LT Sam Phillips

Hello Marines!

This past month has been very busy for the 129th Marine Strike Group. We have been organizing our Marine Strike Group and working on things like the new logo (which is to the right) and writing the Marine section in the membership handbook. We also made some changes in the Promotion Regulation that deals with the Marines and the MACOs.

Our strength is currently at three. Two-Active and One-Reserve.

The Marines have a requirement to qualify in their job, which is called MOS which stands for Marine Occupation Specialty. Each member has been working vigorously to get this completed. Each Marine will receive a one grade promotion by the CO upon the initial qualification. My goal is to have this completed before my next report if all possible.

I have already been working with our Marines and the Marines on several other local chapters to discuss the Toys for Tots project. Even though this is a Marine lead charity project, it is open to anyone who want to help make a difference for a child during the holiday season.

More information will be forth coming in the next issue of the newsletter.

Well that is all for this month, have a great Halloween for those who I will not see or talk to before then.

1LT Sam Phillips
129th MSG, OIC

119th MACO Charlie Team Report 2LT Michael McCarthy

Greetings everyone!

Things have been moving right along this past month. As you can see, our unit uses the same patch design as the MACO's on the USS Helen Pawlowski with the exception of our ship name. The 119th MACO A Team and HQ Section is located on the USS Helen Pawlowski and right now we have no one qualified as a MACO Team Leader to start our own unit. This may be something to think about in the near future.

I already started the conversion with the unit promotion certificates. I also am in contact with Paul Dyl who oversees the MACO unit on the USS Helen Pawlowski about the uniforms etc.

That way we can add it to our chapter handbook.

The qualification requirement to become a MACO Operative is to complete about 47 courses from both SFA and SFMCA. You can start in either Academy, but I recommend you start with one, finish it, and then move on to the other. I will tell you that I have loved the courses so far.

More information will be coming out in the next issue of the chapter newsletter.

If you are interested in joining us, please feel free to contact me.

Until next time,

2LT Michael McCarthy

We plan to have pizza and other snacks for a meal and it will include a ST: Online gaming event and end with the dropping of the Ball at midnight. The event will be at Gary Reynolds house in St. Pauls, NC.

Another item I need to discuss is the chapter's Christmas holiday charity events. A main theme we find in Star Trek is the "Let Me Help" and during these tough economic times, this is very evident. So each year we use two key activities; The Angel Tree and the Toy for Tots.

This year the Angel Tree goal is to adopt 2 children, 1 boys and 1 girl. I will pull the names on December 1st and send everyone an email as to the details. Participation is voluntary and do not feel as though you have to do something. We understand that with the economy the way it is, some may not have the means.

The Toy for Tots have been around for a very long time. The goal is to collect toys and deliver them to one of the drop off points set up in town. The goal is to ask family and friends to donate at least one item. The more we can help a child this season, the better!

Well in the next issue, I hope to report the success of our events. Please everyone be safe when traveling over the holidays....

Bad Wolf Costumes

This is a pattern for three men's uniform shirts seen throughout the modern era of STAR TREK: the DS9/NEM division shirt, the VOY undershirt, and the ENT undershirt.

It was drafted to be a perfect companion to our corresponding DS9/NEM "captain jacket" and "captain vest" patterns, as well as our upcoming DS9/NEM admiral jacket and DS9/NEM/VOY jumpsuit patterns.

Additionally, the pattern includes a wide variety of customization options:

DS9/NEM division shirt options:

- Standard or "hero" collar
- Standard hem or 2 "onesie" options (with fly opening or standard wraparound)
- Full-length zipper trim or Pi-card (partial-length) zipper trim
- 5 different zipper trim/collar construction techniques
- Optional protective neck flap

- Sleeveless or full-length sleeves

VOY undershirt options:

- Standard or "hero" collar
- Standard hem or 2 "onesie" options (with fly opening or standard wraparound)
- Optional fitting darts
- Sleeveless or full-length sleeves

ENT undershirt options:

- Standard front button/buttonhole panel or with extra large facing (designed to be worn partially unbuttoned)
- Optional back seam
- Sleeveless or full-length sleeves

Each of these garments was extensively researched and our pattern was meticulously drafted to be as screen-accurate as possible. The pattern includes information about the finished garments' measurements, all materials required, and detailed instructions.

Also included is a copy of our three FREE in-depth PDF tutorials (one for each garment) on CD!*

These tutorials contain a wealth of information not on the printed instructions, including a detailed analysis of each shirt's construction with accompanying HD images, and known sources for materials and suitable alternatives (though both may vary from time to time).

The tutorial instructions are accompanied by a multitude of pictures and diagrams, various sewing tips, and instructions for how to alter the pattern if necessary to achieve an ideal fit.

As a special bonus, an analysis of all the Starfleet T-shirts and tank tops seen throughout the DS9/VOY era (with tips for making your own) is included as well!

The pattern is printed on two large sheets, and a printed copy of text-only instructions is included in addition to the free tutorials.

* The tutorial CD will only be included with domestic and Canadian orders to minimize international shipping costs. All customers can download the tutorials here:

NASA's Maven spacecraft has entered orbit around Mars, completing a journey that lasted nearly a year and covered 442 million miles.

NASA said late Sunday that the robotic explorer had fired its brakes and slipped into orbit, successfully completing the first part of its $671 million mission.

"This is such an incredible night," John Grunsfeld, NASA's chief for science missions, told The Associated Press.

Flight controllers will spend the next six weeks adjusting Maven's altitude and checking its science instruments. Then Maven will start probing the planet's upper atmosphere. The spacecraft will conduct its observations from orbit; it's not meant to land.

Scientists believe the Martian atmosphere holds clues as to how Earth's neighbor went from being warm and wet billions of years ago to cold and dry. That early moist world may have harbored microbial life, a tantalizing question yet to be answered.

The spacecraft was launched from Cape Canaveral this past November, making it the 10th U.S. mission sent to orbit the red planet. Three earlier ones failed, and until the official word came of success late Sunday night, the entire team was on edge.

"I don't have any fingernails any more, but we've made it," said Colleen Hartman, deputy director for science at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Maryland. "It's incredible."

The spacecraft was clocking more than 10,000 mph when it hit the brakes for the so-called orbital insertion, a half-hour process. The world had to wait 12 minutes to learn the outcome, once it occurred, because of the lag in spacecraft signals given the 138 million miles between the two planets on Sunday.

"Based on observed navigation data, congratulations, Maven is now in Mars orbit," came the official announcement. Flight controllers applauded the news and shook hands; laughter filled the previously tense-filled room.

Maven joins three spacecraft already circling Mars, two American and one European. And the traffic jam isn't over: India's first interplanetary probe, Mangalyaan, will reach Mars in two days and also aim for orbit.

Maven's chief investigator, Bruce Jakosky of the University of Colorado's Laboratory for Atmospheric and Space Physics in Boulder, hopes to learn where all the water on Mars went, along with the carbon dioxide that once comprised an atmosphere thick enough to hold moist clouds.

The gases may have been stripped away by the sun early in Mars' existence, escaping into the upper atmosphere and out into space. Maven's observations should be able to extrapolate back in time, Jakosky said.

Maven -- short for Mars Atmosphere and Volatile Evolution Mission -- will spend at least a year collecting data. That's a full Earth year, half a Martian one. Its orbit will dip as low as 78 miles above the Martian surface as its eight instruments make measurements. The craft is as long as a school bus, from solar wingtip to tip, and as hefty as an SUV.

Maven will have a rare brush with a comet next month.

The nucleus of newly discovered Comet Siding Spring will pass 82,000 miles from Mars on Oct. 19. The risk of comet dust damaging Maven is low, officials said, and the spacecraft should be able to observe Siding Spring as a science bonus.

Lockheed Martin Corp., Maven's maker, is operating the mission from its control center at Littleton, Colorado.

This is NASA's 21st shot at Mars and the first since the Curiosity rover landed on the red planet in 2012. Just this month, Curiosity arrived at its prime science target, a mountain named Sharp, ripe for drilling. The Opportunity rover is also still active a decade after landing.

All these robotic scouts are paving the way for the human explorers that NASA hopes to send in the 2030s.

Starfleet Career Summary

Prior ? Assigned to U.S.S. Livingston and, under Capt. Leyton, promoted to lieutenant commander and first officer of U.S.S. Okinawa.

2367 ? As lieutenant commander and first officer of U.S.S. Saratoga, survived ship's loss against Borg at Battle of Wolf 359; assigned to Utopia Planetia Shipyards on Mars and oversaw development of Defiant-class warship, which was later mothballed.

2369 ? Led Starfleet contingent on Bajoran-owned Deep Space Nine; helped discover Bajoran wormhole, made first contact with its builders, the nonlinear "Prophets."

2370 ? Made first contact with the Jem'Hadar and Dominion in Gamma Quadrant.

2371 ? Given command of experimental U.S.S. Defiant to beef up DS9 defenses; later promoted to captain.

2372 ? Temporary assignment, Chief of Starfleet Security on Earth.

2373 ? Caused postponement of Bajoran admission into UFP based on visions he claimed to receive from "Prophet" aliens; forged Federation-Klingon alliance to fight Dominion; deployed minefield at wormhole to prevent incursion of Dominion reinforcements; subsequently led evacuation of Starfleet personnel from DS9 while under Dominion attack, allowing control of station to revert back to Cardassian leadership; commanded Defiant during several months of front-line fighting.

2374 ? Promoted to Admiral William Ross' strategy adjutant after successful infiltration mission in Dominion space; led task force to recapture Deep Space Nine and prevented passage of Dominion reinforcements through wormhole, apparently due to his relationship with "Prophets"; involved in persuading Romulan Empire to join Alliance; awarded Christopher Pike Medal of Valor by Adm. Ross; led invasion force to liberate Chin'toka System from Dominion; took indefinite leave of absence to mourn death of Jadzia Dax and for personal reflection.

2375 ? Returned to duty on Deep Space Nine after three-month leave; commanded Defiant in Chin'toka battle against Breen, but forced to abandon ship upon its destruction; assigned command of U.S.S. Sao Paulo, subsequently renamed Defiant; with Adm. Ross and Chancellor Martok, led offensive against Cardassia which ultimately effected surrender of Dominion and end of war; last seen travelling alone to Bajor reportedly to "fulfill his destiny" — abandoned runabout was found in orbit over Bajor, but body was never located. (Wife reported being contacted by Sisko in a vision, claiming he had "joined the Prophets" and would return at some unknown time.)

Following the tragedy of his wife's death fighting the Borg at Wolf 359, Sisko entered a dark period for three years at Utopia Planetia and very nearly resigned from Starfleet rather than take the Deep Space Nine assignment — until an encounter with the Bajorans' "Prophet" aliens and the discovery of their wormhole jump-started his healing and set him on an ongoing journey in that role, energizing his life once again. Moreover, his one-time ambitions to make admiral as soon as possible have yielded to his realization that he's more suited to making decisions work than just making them — a prime reason for his success as a "builder" at DS9 and for Bajoran-UFJ relations, along with defending against external threats such as the Dominion, the Maquis, and foreign powers.

Sisko is very much proud of his New Orleans upbringing, where his father was a gourmet chef and insisted the family dine together to try out his new dishes. Sisko had worked summers in his father's restaurant, simply called Sisko's, where he had a job by age 15.

Along with his brothers he has a sister, who lives in Portland, Ore.; the boys had to pick vegetables in their family garden as youngsters. He had a crush on one Effie Beaumont, but later dated Zoey Phillips for three years.

Sisko had been so homesick during his first week at the Academy that he beamed home at 6:30 for dinner to New Orleans, where his mother was still alive. Today Sisko worries about his elderly father's health and heart condition, and at one point felt helpless when it appeared he would indeed die. The elder Sisko refuses to leave his business and make the long journey to DS9, so visits are few and far between.

During his academy years Sisko was captain of the wrestling team in 2351, and served his sophomore field study at Starbase 137.

Crew of Deep Space 9

One cadet Sisko knew at SFA was Laporin, a Benzenite.

A fellow Academy graduate was Cal Hudson, who shared his love of baseball and ambition to make captain by 30 and admiral by 40; they remained close until the Maquis crisis of 2370 split their loyalties. Another friend is now the captain of the U.S.S. Venture; another is the Tholian ambassador at DS9.

As a "raw cadet" he also met Curzon Dax, a joined Trill and Federation official who became his mentor through many years and assignments; when the two first met on Pelios Station, a woman named Anastasia was somehow involved. A perpetual womanizer, Curzon joined him as a first-rate carouser at least until Sisko's late 20s, well after Jake's birth. Curzon had attended his wedding and wild bachelor party as well. They toured the Cliffs of Bole together, often visited Risa, and he once bet he and Hudson's dom-jot play against two Zakdorn at Pelios Station.

Sisko met his future wife Jennifer on Earth immediately at Gilgo Beach after his Academy graduation in 2354, and they soon grew serious about marriage. They once shared a trip to the Mazurka Festival on New Berlin with the Hudsons; ironically, Gretchen Hudson died within the first year of Sisko's stint on DS9. After Jake's birth, the men recalled their best family trip ever was camping on Itamish III.

Sisko and Curzon served some months on the U.S.S. Livingston. He was a veteran of the last UFP-Tzenkethi War during his tenure as lieutenant and lieutenant commander under Capt. Leyton on the U.S.S. Okinawa. Leyton promoted him in rank to become his first officer, and helped nurture his career beyond a basic interest in engineering and ship design.

Sisko's next assignment, on the Saratoga, came to an abrupt end in early 2367 at Wolf 359, where his wife was killed amid their cabin's debris and he and Jake barely escaped. (A reunion with Jennifer was bittersweet when the short-lived encounter occurred in the mirror universe after he was forced to replace his counterpart, the assassinated leader of the Terran Rebellion, in talking her out of working on a deadly project for the Alliance there. This doppelganger also lured Jake over a year later to coerce Sisko in helping build that universe's Defiant for the rebels.)

Leyton, later an admiral, nominated Sisko for the DS9 post when it came open upon the Cardassian withdrawal, but he took it without conviction, still not over his wife's death; his displeasure turned more solid when his send-off came from Capt. Jean-Luc Picard, who was kidnapped and for a time transformed by the Borg to lead the Wolf 359 assault.

While considering a resignation to escape the post, Sisko considered directing construction of orbital habitats on Earth — the field of astronics he was asked to teach at the University of Vasteras in Sweden. Instead, Sisko not only decided to stay but convinced Bajorans and Promenade merchants like Quark to stay.

Sisko's comfort level in his role at DS9 and as a religious icon to Bajor has gradually developed as he's grown comfortable in both roles. Dukat once called him the most joyless and least vulnerable human he's met — a compliment that was eventually rescinded.

Torn between the important joint subspace relay project with Cardassia and the looming chance it might be a foretold catastrophe of Bajoran prophesy, he went ahead with a risky save that not only allowed the relay to work but fulfilled the prophecy in a different way. The incident left him more open and reflective about other prophecies regarding the "Emissary," whose arrival is now celebrated annually as the Ha'mara. He sat in for the ailing Bareil during the secret Bajoran-Cardassian peace talks on DS9, but refused Kai Winn's later request for Starfleet Security troops or aid during her hunt for fugitive Shakaar, based on the Prime Directive.

Sisko does have a temper and is usually unswervable when his mind is made up. He carries a small scar on his lower lip from the impact of a ring where Curzon decked him after he took on an Argosian lieutenant. As a junior officer on VIP escort, he once slugged a visiting ambassador for sexually harassing a female ensign. When perturbed in surprise he often utters an odd yipping sound.

He initially butted heads with Kira and Odo, including a case where she went over his head to Starfleet, but he grew to value their opinions and abilities as time passed. Sisko has stood by Kira during her battles with the Bajoran Provisional Government and been aware of her discomfort at his dual role as her religion's "Emissary." Likewise, he has defended Odo's performance from past criticism by Starfleet regulars, and refused to desert him more than once.

It is certainly with Dax that Sisko has the most history. He still calls her Curzon's "old man" nickname and continues their friendship as one of many years, despite Dax's new outward form — a rare break for Trills who usually are barred from such reassociation. He and Dax lost touch after Jennifer's death early in 2367; Curzon slowly slid into death and Dax was joined to Jadzia later that year. He hated to see her go to be with the Meridians, but unlike Curzon, he knew she'd thought it through. He never thought he'd get used to the "new Dax," but he threatened to turn Trill society upside-down by revealing the Joran scandal after the long quest with Bashir to save Jadzia's life. After taking the risk of embodying the murderous Joran for Dax's zhian'tara, he counseled her not to let Curzon manipulate her again in Odo's form. In return, Dax may have a latent attraction to him, since under the effects of Lwaxana Troi's Zanthi fever, she can't keep away from him.

Sisko has long shared his love of baseball with Jake, aided by a holo-program he brought to DS9. Early on he was wary of losing personal time with him to the demands of work, and at first banned his friendship with the Ferengi boy Nog until he got to know him better. The landmarks of Jake's aging often leave him confused or anxious, as when he first dated. He knew Jake was writing, though he'd try to hide it, but Sisko was not ready to let him become a matchmaker and was miffed that his private life was so well known before he even met Kasidy Yates. Still he and the freighter captain did hit it off — especially when she revealed her brother plays baseball in a Cestus III colony revival league. Sisko later risked shooting a then-allied Klingon ship to rescue her freighter shortly before the alliance breakup.

Aside from Yates, Sisko's romantic life since Jennifer's death had only included Fenna, a telepathic psychoprojective alter ego of the Halanan woman Nidell Seyetik in 2370.

Sisko maintains a healthy recreational life, led by his inherited love of cooking, especially Cajun, and occasionally prepares a hands-on meal for the staff; an old recipe for Creole shrimp is how he finally got to know Jake's onetime girlfriend Marta, his poetry and dom-jot talents. He also cooks Hungarian food when in a good mood. His usual drink on duty is coffee — more specifically the Klingon variety, raktajino — especially first thing in the morning; even Dukat knows about it. Kira could set her watch by it during his first year.

Crew of Deep Space 9

Sisko collects ancient African art and after two years finally brought it to DS9. In 2371, Sisko threw himself into the project of building by hand and flying an ancient Bajoran solar-sail craft with Jake with a zest not seen since he built Jake's nursery — and wound up proving a Bajoran legend about early contact with Cardassia.

His love of baseball includes a holo-program of famous stars, including his hero Buck Bokai, and a baseball kept on display on his desk; when playing, he's a right-handed pitcher. He also keeps up with soccer, but he has no bluff in poker and is out-classed by O'Brien and Bashir in darts. He does play 2-D and 3-D chess, often with Dax. Befitting the crossroads culture of his command, he's been reading up on the Ferengi Rules of Acquisition as of his third year on the station, and hosted a Gratitude Dinner during the same-named Bajoran festival in 2371.

Professional Assessment: Report of Starfleet Command Evaluation Board

Sisko has been an exemplary commander in the new hot spot at DS9, although at times he has shown a streak of stubborn independence that has defied orders yet carried the day in the long run. He disobeyed direct orders to stay at DS9 during the Romulan-Cardassian covert invasion of the Dominion, and risked the Defiant to retrieve Odo anyway; at another time he delayed delivery of a Jem'Hadar youth until he made his escape, trusting in Odo's belief the boy could be raised against his genetic programming to fight. In still another instance, he liberally interpreted the word evacuate during the Bajoran coup threat to delay the withdrawal of his forces.

When trapped in the 21st century's Bell Riots, he risked his life to assume the identity of prematurely killed riot namesake Gabriel Bell and even took a bullet in the shoulder to preserve the timeline after he and Doctor Bashir's accidental arrival. Sisko has also made a bit of history in 2371 as the first sponsor of a Ferengi cadet to Starfleet Academy, Rom's son and Jake's friend Nog — but not before putting the boy to the test.

While Sisko's direct intervention to rescue Cardassia's civilian Detepa Council may have been questionable with Klingons nearing Cardassia Prime, along with the unauthorized use of the cloaking device, his heavily re-armed station helped persuade Gowron that division among Alpha Quadrant powers is exactly what the Dominion Founders want.

Sisko has risked his life on more than one occasion in the line of duty, including working from the Cardassian War Room to retrieve the Defiant when stolen by Tom Riker of the Maquis, then negotiating for the release of hostage Kira, the ship and its Maquis crew in return for surrendering their leader without the customary death sentence in store. He was also ready to self-destruct the Defiant rather than let it start another war with the Tzenkethi as part of a Dominion Founders sabotage.

UPDATE: Psycho-medical File, CMO J. Bashir reporting SD 50500

As times have grown tense at DS9, Captain Sisko has risen to the challenge. With only the help of Odo and Nog he foiled a martial-law coup on Earth led by Admiral Leyton in mid-2372, even though it pit him against his long-time mentor and senior officer; he formed an uneasy partnership with the Jem'Hadar to subdue rebels trying to use ancient Iconian doorways; and he led the team that unmasked the Changing double of Gowron's top aide Martok.

And I must say he has grown increasingly comfortable as Bajor's Emissary, especially since he had to "fight" for the role of religious icon from well-intentioned poet Akorem Laan later in 2372. This episode probably best prepared him for the experiences of a year later, when a post-neural shock helped the captain discover the ancient lost holy city of B'hala on Bajor after 20,000 years, and to seeing cryptic visions of the future. Now that this doctor can reflect from a distance, I am not sure what was more shocking: that without Jake's intervention to authorize corrective treatment he would have sacrificed his life to continue, that he called off Bajor's UFP admission based on a vision, or that he finally has Kai Winn's respect.

To the surprise of no one, and just as he had promised her, the captain resumed his relationship with Kasidy Yates when she returned from her six-month sentence for aiding the Maquis — about the same time as his pagh'tem'far visions began. The intimacy and its consequences in hindsight have appeared to have little effect on his command ability, other than in a positive way.

AUTOMATED FILE REPORT:
Agent X. Dulmer, Temporal
Investigation SD 50200

Upon review of the customary evidence and interviews of all subjects involved by this agent and Agent Lucsley, it is our determination that no lasting contamination in this timeline resulted from Sisko's accidental use of the Bajoran Orb of Time to visit 2267 and the NCC-1701, J.T. Kirk commanding.

My only regret on this trip is in not visiting more of this station, which I have heard so much about.

ADDENDUM: Adm. Charles
Whatley, Starfleet Command
SD 50500

What do I say about Ben Sisko? First he and his crew are decorated for retrieving a new and fairly intact Jem'Hadar cruiser, and then he goes and starts having these odd Bajoran "visions" and postpones — maybe even sinks for good — the very Federation admission for Bajor that he's worked for five years. Not to mention his run-in again with the Temporal Investigations boys, after his run-in with the time-hopper of all "time," JTK.

Any other officer would have been yanked for that, or at least reassigned, but I have a hunch about Ben. I also have a hunch that any sudden action by this "secular" authority regarding Bajor's Emissary will not be received well by the locals.

Despite our earlier choice to take him off the mission, I must also commend Sisko for his handling of the Eddington affair and the virtual end to Maquis operations that brought. And yes, his covert team sent to check out whether Gowron had been replaced by a Changeling was well done, and likely helped set up the current armistice. I suppose the fact that his psychographic profile is now required reading for Dominion Vorta field supervisors means something.
