Commanding Officer's Update By CMDR Ken Coots

Commander
Ken Coots

Attention all crewmembers of the USS Excalibur

I have several announcements to make this issue, the first two are on a sad note.

Passing of FADM Wayne Killough

As most of you may have heard, the Fleet Admiral passed away a few weeks ago from complications of an outpatient surgical procedure. I have passed on our condolences and prayers to Wayne's family and friends.

Passing of CPT James E Nelson

As most of you have heard, one of our chapters sister ship COs has passed away recently. James had been on the USS Helen Pawlowski at a time that the majority of us were also a part of her crew. James was like an uncle to me and a personal friend to many of you.. I have passed on our condolences and prayers to James' family and friends.

*Academy is a HUGE department.. We have 21 Institutes, approx 190 live Colleges and approx 5385 live Courses.

*The position does not have to be permanent, if the candidate is otherwise involved in other positions or projects. But it could become permanent, if the candidate is willing to stay on after the project is completed.

Those interested should contact Kevin Plummer at sfofficer.plummer@gmail.com with a cc to Carol Thompson at betazoid@mosquitonet.com, outlining their experience with setting up and maintaining the Moodle program.

First Officer's Report Update By LCDR Alex King

Lieutenant Commander
Alex King

Greetings to All,

First, I am very happy to announce that we have a new crewmember, Gorka Oceja. Gorka hails from Spain and after a few emails has decided to be assigned to the Science department. Second I report with sadness on the passing of James Nelson, CO of the USS George Washington. James passed away May 8 of this year. We also lost Fleet Admiral Wayne Killough, who was the Commander, Starfleet. Wayne passed away back in April.

One of the problems of being a correspondence chapter is that we don't get to see each other and can't really do things a meeting chapter can do. So I was wondering about how to do something as a group that doesn't need us to travel. I was looking at Facebook one day and saw several things about the new movie then I saw an article about the Starfleet Vessel Readiness Certification courses. I sent Ken a brief mail about the SVRC and we decided to run with it. Basically this is something we can do as a group. We take classes that will certify a department such as medical as being ready for duty, but it's not done by one person, but as a group of people. Each person takes one or two topics for the department and completes them. After the scores are posted to the database, all the courses that the group completed are listed and sent to Starfleet. Starfleet will then send a certification to our CO who can note it on the ships website. After all departments are certified, we can get a master certification for the ship. It's not limited to Starfleet, but MA-CO and the Marines can be included. Ken and I both feel this will be something fun and exciting for all of to do as a crew, plus it can help us learn something new. with that in mind, I need to know who wants to contribute to this. Please email me your name, email address and what department you are in (if you are assigned to one) and what department you think we such start with. Once we do that, we can start deciding who wants to do what topics. I really hope everyone will want to do at least one or two departments for the Excalibur.

Please email me as soon as you can. Also email me or Ken with any questions you have, after all we are here to help support you. I also ask that you please join our Facebook page, or email me suggestions for another social media spot so we can share news and information. Until next time Fair winds and following seas!
Live Long and Prosper,

Alex King

SFI Scholarship Donations

Folks;

I wish to thank everyone who has or intends to make a donation to the Scholarship Fund in honor of former CS Wayne Killough. The total received in donations stating that they are in honor of Wayne Killough is $1239.76. This will allow us to give a full $1000 scholarship this year in Wayne's honor and apply the overage to the other scholarship we fund each year. We certainly will not turn away future donations to the scholarship program should any one wish to donate. Thank you to those of you who have been more than generous with your funds. I am very proud of the FLEET.

There have been donations made thru the membership processing avenues also. The total of these generic donations for the week is $117.00.

Chief Medical Officer's Report Lieutenant Junior Grade Jessica Llyod

Hello everyone! This is my second report as your Chief Medical Officer.

I saw the report that the Chief Medical Officer on the USS Helen Pawlowski submitted for their newsletter and I asked the CO if I could also use it as I felt that it was about a very important and current medical issue.

By Admiral Dave Miller, MD
Chief Medical Officer
USS Helen Pawlowski

Zika virus is in the news and of concern to all of us, especially those who may live in southern states near the Caribbean. What follows is useful information from the CDC. Go here for more information on the Zika virus: www.cdc.gov/zika.

What Is Zika Virus?

Zika virus spreads to people primarily through the bite of an infected Aedes species mosquito. These mosquitoes are aggressive daytime biters, but they can also bite at night. A mosquito becomes infected when it bites a person already infected with Zika. That mosquito can then spread the virus by biting more people. Zika virus can also spread during sex with a person infected with Zika, from a pregnant woman to her baby during pregnancy or around the time of birth; and possibly through blood transfusion (likely but not confirmed yet).

At this time the CDC states that there 544 known cases of Zika in the continental United States, 157 of them pregnant women. All of these cases have been determined to be associated with travel. At this time there are no documented cases of mosquito transmitted infection in the continental US. There are two types of mosquitoes that are believed to be likely to spread the Zika virus in the continental United States. One of these has a range that includes much of the southern states as well as many states further north.

Zika Symptoms

Many people infected with Zika won't have symptoms or will only have mild symptoms lasting for several days to a week after being bitten by an infected mosquito. Many people do not realize they are even infected with the virus. The most common symptoms are fever, rash, joint pain, or red eyes (conjunctivitis). Other common symptoms include muscle pain and headache. Symptoms can last for several days to a week. People usually don't get sick enough to go to the hospital, and they very

Chief Science Officer Report By LCDR Alex King

Lieutenant Commander
Alex King

Chief Science Officers report,

Greetings all, I am very happy to have a new addition to the Science department. Recruit Gorke Oceja joined us in late May. He has a Doctorate in History and Medieval History, Doctorate in Archeology. Graduated on Heraldic Vexology and Genealogy studies; Graduated on leadership and work groups management, and technician on International Relations. Which is enough to give your science office a great case of the humbles. Haha.

He has chosen to work in the Archeology department. Otherwise Sciences has been watching a great number of items that have huge implications for our future. To me, the neatest thing is the SpaceX rocket system. They have developed a first stage rocket engine that can soft land back on the launch point, or another chosen point. Another was a little article about transporters and how they can be made to work. But I think I will not be the first to volunteer to test it out.

One thing I need to know is what you want the science department to report on and what topics are of most interest to you. It's hard to know what to report on, since there are new things being discovered or worked on or made every day, I could fill every newsletter with articles, but unless there are articles some or most of you are interested in, it would be a waste of time. Please talk to me about what you want to know about and can start looking for articles that suit the ship. Please join the ships Facebook page (<https://www.facebook.com/groups/940579815979590>) and give me ideas for items to be posted there.

28th Recon Detachment Report CMDR Ken Coots

Greetings Operatives!

Things have been moving right along this past month. I have been working on the unit logo which a copy of it is to the right.

Currently the unit strength is at 10 Operatives.

We are called the 28th Recon Detachment because currently no one is MACO TL qualified and so we could have waited and not have a unit or get started being a part of SFSO and once I am certified as a Team Leader, the unit will re-organize as a MACO unit. But instead of creating different logos etc. I asked the Chapter CO who also happens to be me to just go with the one set of logos.

The other Logo is the standard unit logo that all MACO units have that are the same except for the unit numeral in the center. That is currently being worked on.

The qualification requirement to become a MACO Operative is to complete MACO Grades 1 and 2. Upon completing Grade 2, you will be a certified MACO and along with that you will be awarded the MACO Ribbon which signifies that you're a certified MACO. You must start with Grade 1 and then you can move on to Grade 2..

More information on the Training certifications, please refer to the SFSO Training Manual located at:

<https://sfisfso.wordpress.com/publications/>

If you are interested in joining us, please feel free to contact me for more information.

rarely die of Zika. Once a person has been infected with Zika, they are likely to be protected from future infections. Based on current knowledge, it is believed that the virus remains active in a person's blood stream for approximately a week.

Why Zika is Risky for Some People

The biggest risk with the Zika virus is for pregnant women. Zika infection during pregnancy can cause developing babies to have a birth defect of the brain called microcephaly (small brain and skull development). Other problems have been detected among fetuses and infants infected with Zika virus before birth, such as defects of the eye, hearing deficits, and impaired growth. There have also been increased reports of Guillain-Barré syndrome, an uncommon sickness of the nervous system, in areas affected by Zika. There have been proven cases of this disease being transmitted sexually from one partner to another.

How to Prevent Zika

There is no vaccine to prevent Zika. The best way to prevent diseases spread by mosquitoes is to protect yourself and your family from mosquito bites.

Here's how:

Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants.

Stay in places with air conditioning and window and door screens to keep mosquitoes outside.

Take steps to control mosquitoes inside and outside your home.

Use a bug spray containing at least 20% DEET.

Mosquito netting can be used to cover babies younger than 2 months old in carriers, strollers, or cribs to protect them from mosquito bites.

Sleep under a mosquito bed net if air conditioned or screened rooms are not available or if sleeping outdoors.

Prevent sexual transmission of Zika.

At this time there is no recommendations against travel to anywhere in the continental us due to risks of the Zika virus. Obviously information is changing rapidly when it comes to this virus and the risks posed by infection.

Zika Treatment

There is no specific medicine to treat Zika.

Treat the symptoms:

Get plenty of rest.

Drink fluids to prevent dehydration.

Take medicine such as acetaminophen (Tylenol) to reduce fever and pain.

Do not take aspirin or other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (Ibuprofen or Advil).

If you are taking medicine for another medical condition, talk to your healthcare provider before taking additional medication.

To help prevent others from getting sick, strictly follow steps to prevent mosquito bites during the first week of illness.

In closing let me say, thank you to Admiral Miller and the USS Helen Pawlowski for allowing me to use the report from their newsletter.

Starfleet Career Summary

2369 – As lieutenant, posted to DS9 as science officer

2372 – Won promotion to lieutenant commander

2374 – Combat promotion to commander, U.S.S. Defiant, during DS9 occupation

Psychological Profile: Report of Starfleet Counselor Telnorri, Bajoran Sector

The eighth eventual Trill host of the symbiont Dax is the discoverer of the Bajoran wormhole to the Gamma Quadrant, which catapulted the area into the galactic hotseat. The perspective of seven previous lifetimes has left her with an extremely broad view of life which surprisingly skews to the unpredictable and even mischievous rather than the staid and conservative, while symbiosis itself at times has proved to be problematic in her off-world career.

*Terry Farrellas
as LCDR Jadzia Dax*

Jadzia has two parents and one sister, all still alive by 2372. Although she was not above breaking windows at night as a crack shot with rocks when younger, the quiet, shy and naive young woman had worked hard since childhood to qualify for the Trill hosting program and received academic degrees in exobiology, zoology, astrophysics and exo-archaeology at Starfleet Academy, although at the time of her DS9 posting at age 28 as a lieutenant she had never served on a starship.

In 2367 at age 26, Jadzia made history as the only rejected Trill initiate to return successfully and pass the program. She had spent three years in all as an initiate and hardly ever left its complex; she didn't receive basic flight experience certification of Level 3 until her last year of training.

Ironically, after acceptance she chose the Dax symbiont previously hosted by Curzon, her harsh field docent. He had rejected her in the first place after only two weeks of field training as unmotivated and unfocused — an act which dogged Jadzia for years, despite her success; she had studied his infamous record and was already nauseated with the pressure, crying herself to sleep each night until she was dropped. It was only later, after she redoubled her efforts and passed the training with his approval, that she learned he had really rejected her only out of misplaced guilt due to his sexual attraction to the attractive young woman. The Joining was completed as Curzon neared the end of a slow, lingering death in mid-year.

Such a turbulent relationship with the previous host of the symbiont she now carries has haunted Jadzia, who has found herself in a love-hate relationship with his legacy that at times has bordered on sheer competition. In addition, due to her off-world posting, Dax has probably endured more conflict due to symbiosis than the typical Joined Trill.

Accused of Curzon's alleged murder of Klaestron IV's General Tandro by the general's zealous son, she had preferred a death sentence rather than expose Tandro's role as a rebel collaborator and Curzon's affair with his wife, both eventually revealed. In 2370 she supervised her own first initiate trainee, Arjin, only three years younger than she, and came to grips with some suppressed bitterness about Curzon's treatment of her. Curzon figured again weeks later when she swore to uphold a blood oath of his on an unauthorized quest with Klingons Kor, Kang and Koloth that could have cost her life, much less her Starfleet career.

Deep Space 9

Dax has also been forced to reintegrate memories from two unexpected hosts. One, in 2370, was the once-rejected host candidate Verad who hijacked the symbiont from Jadzia. The other came a year later, when a failing memory block revealed in series of nightmares the onetime murderer Joran Belar and the yet-unrevealed Symbiosis Commission cover-up of the error 85 years earlier.

After years of procrastination due to her uneasiness at confronting Curzon again, she underwent her first Trill zhian'tara Rite of Closure to meet all previous hosts; ironically, the uniquely melded Odo/Curzon reincarnation almost decided to stay in that form permanently. The eventual return of Curzon's memories to Jadzia allowed her the additional experience of a changeling's perspective.

Dax's personal as well as professional reunion with Curzon's old protege Ben Sisko at DS9 was unique in some ways in light of the Trill taboo against reassociation. Even more so, in 2372 she had considered remating with former host Torias' widow's symbiont Kahn in its current host, Lenara — until Lenara succumbed to the social pressure and broke it off. Earlier, her only romantic encounter since ca. 2270 had been a bittersweet encounter with a resident of planet Meridian, a dimension-shifting world destined to appear in solid form in this universe once every 60 years.

Despite this rarity of outward sexual intimacy, Dax's long life as both genders has if anything broadened her perspective on romance, sex, and multiculturalism, not diminished it. She generally enjoys the attention shown her by men overall and is tolerantly amused by the crushes of Bashir and Quark, actually enjoying the Ferengi oddities that turn Kira off. She's studied up on the Rules of Acquisition and had always wanted to see a Ferengi in Starfleet, but like Sisko was skeptical of Nog's Academy application. Dax even thought Morn was cute, but once turned down his dinner invitation; she later accepted one from the clear-skulled Gallamite Capt. Boday. Still, her longevity has fostered a cavalier attitude about others' privacy and secrets: she is somewhat jealous that Sisko will not share his personal side as much as he did with Curzon.

Actually, her relationship with Bashir has matured from his puppy love to a deep friendship. She submitted Bashir's Carrington nomination through an old friend of Curzon's and throws him a surprise birthday party each year; he, in turn, has risked his life and career on more than one occasion to save hers, usually due to a quirk of her symbiotic state. Thanks to Lwaxana Troi's Zanthi fever — which only acts in case of latent relationships already perceived — Bareil pursued her and she Sisko during the 2381 Gratitude Festival.

Dax remains in superior physical condition, enjoying Galeo-Manada style wrestling as well as the more well-known Klingon martial arts, which she began studying after her Joining thanks to Curzon's extensive contact with the culture. A near-match in combat expertise for Worf, she became his unexpected confidant when the Klingon signed aboard the station in early 2372, searching with he and Kor for the Sword of Kahless and interceptin his brother Kurn's Mauk-to'Vor ritual suicide.

Personally, Dax is a self-professed a "night owl" and hates to be "appropriate" — thus explaining her interest in forgotten composers like the Romulan Frenchotte, Yridian symphonies and Klingon opera as well as interstellar gourmet and Klingon food. She is better at poker and Tongo than Curzon ever was, but she and Sisko are an even match at traditional 2-D chess. She also inherited a love of steamed azna from prior hosts, along with the Altonian brain teaser puzzle some 140 years before her Joining — when either Emony or Audrid was Dax's host. A Black Hole is one favorite drink, although on duty she usually prefers an iced raktajino with extra cream. Her quarters are heavily decorated with small sculptures, knick-knacks, and scientific antique tools; circa SD 48212 she briefly coifed her hair in a more matronly style before returning to her former look.

Performance Review: Report of Starfleet Science Division

In her Starfleet career she was decorated on her first mission, aided Kira and Sisko in the put-down of Jaro's would-be Bajoran coup, but was at odds with the late Capt. Keogh over "mutual arrogance" in a well-known and unresolved spat. Despite their dissimilar services, she is second in command to Major Kira on DS9 and has had command in Ops on the night shift, while on the U.S.S. Defiant she usually crews the helm and has served admirably in its combat and exploratory missions, per Captain Sisko's reports.

Actions by Dax also figured prominently in restoring the damaged time-line regarding Earth history's Bell Riots, caused by the accidental temporal displacement of the Defiant. In securing a public access for the aggrieved residents at the heart of the riots, she had explained that her name was Dutch, while her Trill markings were tattoos applied in Japan.

Psycho-Medical File Update: SD 50500, CMO J. Bashir reporting

I have assumed responsibility for this task for the first time since my posting at this station.

The past year has been one of relatively quiet jeopardy for Jadzia Dax, which may explain why she now seeks her bumps and bruises as Lt. Cmdr. Worf's Par'machkai. I have watched as their mutual affection grew into full-blown romance, thanks to Worf's one-time attraction to Grilka, and consider it a new twist and a challenge on all the more mundane romances Dax has seen in its prior six lifetimes as Telnorri has noted above. While her abandon seems to run counter to his renowned Klingon conservatism, the formula seems to be a perfect yin-yang match of opposites, with Worf showing only occasional bouts of jealousy over past lovers, such as Risa's facilitator Arnadis (with Curzon) and Capt. Boday, the Gallamite. One wonders, though, how long her Trill superstructure can withstand the ongoing punishment of Klingon passion.

Officially, so far the relationship has not affected their job review — aside from a small amount of duty time missed for recuperation. Dax returned safely from both the mission to retrieve the downed Jem'Hadar ship and her experiences in the past aboard Kirk's 23rd century Enterprise.

Although Jadzia speaks rarely of her family and homeworld, I understand she regularly writes to her mother back on Trill; she still is a night owl and often runs anomaly scans in Ops at night to relax. With her longevity, saving and acquiring do not register with her, so it is not surprising she has no more than two bars of gold-pressed latinum when three-time Tongo champion Capt. Ramirez beats her in a no-limit game at Starbase 63.

FINAL ENTRY
Capt. Benjamin Sisko

I am always steeled to the possibility that at any time I will be compelled to make a final entry into the personnel files of those under my command, especially in the midst of war. Somehow, with her having survived seven lifetimes, I just thought it would not be for Jadzia Dax — at least not so soon.

In hindsight, I knew the eighth Dax host for only a fraction of the time I knew Curzon Dax, her predecessor. But this is different — perhaps because that was a mentoring relationship for me and this was one of near-equals, even my subordinate when it comes to rank.

She was so happy with her marriage to Worf. She was so happy at the prospect of having children. I know he grieves, as do I in an odd way, that she did not meet her fate in "glorious battle." Somehow, ending this life in the Promenade's Bajoran shrine as the victim of a pah-wraith — a cast-out Bajoran Prophet — inhabiting a humanoid form (Dukat, of all things) is so unfair. Unsatisfying. Useless. And not to mention troubling, especially for one supposed to be cast in the role as Bajor's Emissary from its Prophets. Very troubling, in fact — it is part of a situation that has my soul in a death grip I fear I may not shed for some time.

Commendations — personal if not official — to my CMO Julian Bashir for saving the Dax symbi-ont, who is already en route to Trill on life support. Whomever its new host will be is a matter for the Symbiosis Commission, but I find myself wondering if I shall ever see Dax again. It is not a thought I ever pondered after Curzon's passing, but after working alongside two of these Daxes — one Joined for nearly a century, one all too brief — I am struck by the fact that the symbiotic Trill are supposed to outlive their more pedestrian humanoid companions — and not the other way around. I do not know if I could bear to go through this again.
